TRENDS:

The number of IED explosions has been taken as an indicator of the IED networks activity, whilst the number of finds/caches is considered to be an indirect indicator of the security actors’ effectiveness.

3. ASSESSMENT:

Although maybe Ethiopia is the country where have been more wounded and where the statistics increase as a consequence of the last attack in Addis Ababa, Kenya, Somalia and Nigeria are the countries where more casualties have had for this month.

It should be highlight that in Nigeria, and Boko Haram is the most active terrorists group in Africa during this month, with more than 50 people killed in different explosions.

Algeria follow fighting against terrorism and several bombs, explosive material and shelter have been located and destroyed.

Although the numbers of IED’s increase respect of the previous months, the number of casualties are not so higher, maybe was a consequence of the end of the sacred month, which finished on 14th of June.
A) NORTH AMERICA

1. BACKGROUND:

The following analysis based on Free Open Sources Intelligence collection, and therefore this report may not reflect entirely IED incidents in this area of study.

In the period covered by the analysis, there were eight incidents recorded in Canada and a ninety four incidents in the United States. One of the incidents in Canada was an actual attack although of minor importance, and in the USA there were thirteen significant events, but only one was relevant.

2. MONTHLY HIGHLIGHTS:

Starting with Canada, the only incident worth mentioning happened in Senneville, Montreal. A homemade explosive hidden in a mail box exploded wounding lightly a 68 year old woman that was checking the box. No further information was released until now.

The most relevant incident in USA is again an gunfire incident with an IED supporting the attack. The attack occurred in Annapolis, Mariland, where a 20 years old man attacked with a shotgun the Local newspaper, killing five people. The IED was found before de attack, unexploded.
Other minor incidents occurred in the US, like an incendiary device thrown against a Chinese restaurant in Kensington, Pennsylvania. Also, the container of an IED without any explosive charge was found in the trunk of a pickup truck that was parked for a month in an apartment complex.

3. TRENDS:

The trend of this month follows the line of the last months, but with a 30% reduction of the false and hoax incidents. Also, the importance of the incidents falls down greatly.

4. ASSESSMENT:

Initially, the incident in Canada is not very relevant. The old lady who suffered the explosion did not need an ambulance. That suggests that the IED was very small, and could even be just a child’s jest. Also, the fact that the incident happened early in June and throughout the month it was not mentioned again with further information also suggest that the incident was of minor importance.

In the USA, on the other hand, a similar attack like the one occurred in May happened again. In this case was the attack of a newspaper building instead of a school, and it’s very unlikely that both incidents are related, but the use of an IED by someone with no training or support, but access to weapons and components may suggest that this could become a trend in this kind of incidents. Although nothing is known from the person conducting the attack in Annapolis or his motivations, in both cases they were young people and in both cases they used IED.s that did not explode.

Finally, like in the previous months, the number of false IED incidents and hoax incidents are still very high but significantly reduced. This could indicate a trend in this kind of false alarms, or could simply indicate that news media is losing interest in this kind of events and simply not reporting.
ASIA ASSESSMENT

1. MONTHLY HIGHLIGHTS:

Thailand
On June 21, Royal Thai Police seized several IEDs and IED components from a pickup truck in the southern Thailand city of Narathiwat. The IEDs were seized at a police checkpoint in Kampung Saring. The 39-year-old driver (Name: ZANUZI Yatae) was arrested and one additional person fled the checkpoint. The IEDs and additional IED components would be delivered to an unidentified individual in Ranget, Narathiwat and consists of:

- 40 COIED (homemade hand grenades) with optional time operated (TOIED). Each of them weighed about 500 gr.
- One COIED (pipe bomb)
- Two RCIED transmitters
- Four torches
- Two boxes of RC components
- 36 boxes of timer circuits (set for 5 minutes)
- One box with timer circuit (set for 10 minutes)
- Two boxes of timer circuits (set for 30 minutes)
- Radio Set

Police believe the IEDs were assembled in Malaysia because the PVC pipes used were not available in Thailand. The Thai Army later confirmed during a press conference that the IEDS were produced in Malaysia and smuggled into the country. Part of the seized electronic components (NFI) was one handheld radio (manufacture company unknown, but similar to Baofeng UV-5R Handheld FM Dual Band VHF UHF with 136-174 MHz and 400-479.995 MHz. This kind of device is worldwide available through internet shops.
The antennas which are attached to the two plastic boxes indicates that probably TYT TH-F8 handheld two way radios with the following frequencies 70-108MHz (FM Receive only), 136-174MHz, 400-470MHz, 245-246MHz, 350-390MHz, 470-520MHz are installed inside. These devices are worldwide available through internet shops.

Remarks:
Sungai Golok River separates Malaysia and Thailand as a natural border. The runaway suspect was identified as Abdul Arsi, a resident of Tak Bai, based on ID card which was found in a bag he probable lost during his escape from the scene. The search of the house of the runaway suspect, did not uncover any illegal items. Based on official statements ZANUZI Yatae had just been freed after spending four years in jail for involvement in a string of violent incidents, including the attack of Narathiwat Task Force 38 base on January 19, 2011, and the seizure of Cho Airong district hospital on January 13, 2016. Zanuzi is a resident of Tambon Tanyongmas in Narathiwat’s Rangae district.
The Isuzu pickup truck that was used to carry the IEDs belong to Sanusee’s brother who is now serving a life jail term for his involvement in the attack of Narathiwat Task Force 38 base in 2011. Zanuzi declared that he and the second suspect drove their pickup truck to the border at Ban Pado village in Tambon Na Nak in Tak Bai and four insurgents on motorcycles met them and gave them the bombs.

Assessment:
For several years, The Royal Thai police have been improving their border security activities, setting checkpoints and increased patrols in effort to hamper terrorist activities from the southern neighboring country Malaysia. The seizure of these IEDs and additional IED components illustrate the terrorism groups are still using the border for smuggling activities.
The involvement of the two suspected persons, both with strong ties to former terrorist incidents in Thailand, shows that even convicted terrorists after release from jail or people with family links to terrorism, are willing to support the Islamic terrorists.
The design of the homemade hand grenades is known since 2017. The current events with the seizure of these devices close to the Malaysian border, plus the results of the questioning of the suspects, points out that these IEDs were most likely manufactured in Malaysia. This assumption could be strengthened by the non-availability of the PVC tubes in Thailand.
The blue boxes are homemade ignition systems with RC as receiver and possibly additional time operated devices. The seized radio is most likely the transmitter.
On each box is mentioned a frequency and the possible time delay time (20 min). These two boxes could be used as an example for a new manufacture design on how the electronic components have to be installed in boxes.
Based on visual identification, one option to use the device is possibly;
Switch number 1 as power switch for the RC radio. Switch 2 as power switch for the two timers (safe time 20min). The two timers are the power switches for switch 3 and 4. Switch 3 and 4 as arming switches for IEDs.
The suspects captured above could belong to the Barisan Revolusi Nasional-Koordinasi (BRN-C) which is the main Islamist terrorist group in southern Thailand, or to the Runda Kumpulan Kecil (RKK), one of the armed wings of the BRN-C with links to Malaysia.
2. REGION ASSESSMENT.

According to open sources information we can observe overall increase of IED activities in region in comparison with spring period most likely caused by changed weather conditions – the same variance repeats during the same season every year.

3. TRENDS:

4. ASSESSMENT:

According to open sources information, in June the number of IEDs was similar in relation to the previous months.

United Kingdom, Turkey and Ukraine are the countries which the highest number of incidents, but in UK most of them were considered hoax or false incidents, which could be interpreted that security forces are considering any possible incident as real and act consequently.
During this month it is striking the increase of incidents in Netherlands and the flight that was diverted to Shannon Airport (Ireland) following an apparent bomb threat.

Permanent asymmetric conflicts as in Ukraine and Turkish fights against PKK will promote the use of any kind of weapon including IEDs.

Other IED incidents were related to domestic terrorism or conflict.
